LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

August 1th, 1916.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.
Siz,—"Wicklow Unionist" appears to think that every county has its own limit. He ought to know that we have none. Most Wicklowmen joined the Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

I think the authorities did their best to follow up the line advocated by him. Certainly, everything was done to get the local nobility, gentry, clergy, etc., regardless of religion or politics, etc., to take an interest in same, and eligible men were not asked to serve on committees. The results in some places were very good. From the Commons of Rathnew, out of a population of some 450 men, women, and children, about 100 men are serving, and some 120 enlisted from a two-mile area round Newtownmountkennedy. I consider the labouring and upper classes have done very well, but from the other class you cannot get recruits; I believe most of them think themselves above serving in the rants.—Yours, etc.,

Our Dominion Visitors. a visit of this nature, these gentlemen would have been better advised to temper the public expression of their political views with a discreet regard for the fact that those views are not universally shared in Ireland. The Dominion deputation is to visit Belfast on Wednesday, and it would be regrettable if the character of the after-dinner speches at its reception at the Dublin Mansion House on Saturday should prejudice its welcome in that city. We hope that the political remarks of some of its members will not have this unfortunate result, because we think that this visit of the Dominion delegates is capable of being fruitful of great good for Ireland. It should help to import into Ireland, unless people insist on preferring to make party political capital out of it, something of swider Imperial vision. If we may venture to offer a word of advice to the deputation, and especially to those members of it who, while they are Nationalistal in sympathy, are first of all, we are sure, patriotic friends of their land of origin, we shall recommend them to emphasise the points on which Irishmen are, or should be, in agreement, rather than those on which they differ. We differ about politics; we do not, or should not, differ about economics; and Irishmen are, or should be, in agreement, rather than those on which they differ. We differ about politics; we do not, or should met differ about economics; and Ireland is to-day confronted with the greatest, economic opportunity in the whole of her history.

When the war is over, as Sir James Carroll, of New Zealand, said on Saturday, "they must get together, and each separate part of the Empire would have its voice in the determination of the great issues that would make the new world to come." One Imperial conference is to determine the future form of government of the Empire, and will review the question of Irish government in relation to that problem. We do not desire to enter here into matters of controversy; we shall merely say with regard to that conference that the great Dominions which, in the words of Senator Keating, of Australia, "sprang like hounds from the leash to Britain's side,"

It is obviously a task of immense difficulty to raise credits in foreign markets to that extent. Happily, we have long been a creditor among the nations. The wealth agained by the nations. The wealth of communities which needed capital for development. We have a large income from those investments abroad, and we hold securities for the return of the capital. At present—more on our Malies' behalf than our own—we need apital for development which we lead to communities which

RELATIONS WITH GERMANY.

INTERVIEW WITH SIR EDWARD CARSON. (REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

The Matin publishes an interview with Edward Carson, who is described as say. "Diplomatic relations should not be ren with Germany until after her crimes have punished. The Germans are barbarians, we should treat as such. Every Allied Germent ought to declare to the German peto-day that when peace is signed we shall send any diplomatic representative to Berlis receive any diplomatic representative to Berlis receive any diplomatic representative from many, so long as the Germans have not it selves punished all those guilty of murdering the war, and all who have violated international laws established in the intereshumanity in the course of past centuries. reason which renders such action necessar, the fact that neutrals have passively locked whilst these laws were being violated, nust, therefore, take special measures to a that these rules cannot be infringed with unity. If we do not take such measures, nust in future give up all hope of introductions. them, but the terms and conditions are such as to encourage response to the offer. The securities now wanted include South American, Canadian, Dutch, Egyptian, Japanese, and Scandinavian stocks and bonds. The purpose for which they are required is explained briefly in the official description of the scheme as one for the regulation of foreign exchanges. At the beginning of the war British credit stood high in every market. It would have borne easily enough the strain of our own demand for supplies from abroad, but we have strained it heavily in the interests of our Allies. The position is illustrated

OBITUARY.

An important question on the price of bread will be asked by Mr. O'Grady of the Prime Minister to-morrow. Mr. Asquith will be asked whether he is aware that the price of bread in London was to be raised on Monday, 14th August, to 9d, the four-pound loaf; and, whether, having regard to the fact that the purchasing power of £1 is at present 12s. 9d. or thereabouts, he will say if there is any intention on the part of His Majesty's Government to take steps to prevent further increase in prices, and to bring down the present price of bread to 8d, the four-pound loaf.

The Statutory Pensions Committee have made arrangements to provide for the training of partially disabled ex-service men to fit them to become small holders. The training is to be of the most practical character, for a number will be trained in an Agricultural College, the Board of Agriculture maintaining them without deducting anything from their pensions. Another promising development by the Committee is the establishment of convalescent homes to provide treatment for nerve-shaken soldiers.

The Postmaster-General, who has been in receipt of complaints from relatives and friends of soldiers in France, has called for a report regarding the postal arrangements there. It seems that an explanation received from those responsible is quice satisfactory. With so large a body of men constantly on the move errors are unavoidable, but experienced men are given charge of the field post offices, and these do all that is possible. Some of the facts provided by the report are striking as showing that complaints have little real basis. There are no unsorted letters in any Army post office, and all the letters which cannot be delivered are returned to the senders. Urgent "whips," any The Times, have been sent out by the Germment and the Unionist War Committee to-day's sitting of the House of Common The Prime Minister has promised to outline he proposals of the Government for bringing up to date the now stale register of Parliamentary electors. Mr. Asquith will make his automent in introducing the Parliament and Ical Elections Bill. The objects of the bill se to extend the life of the present Parliament which would expire at the send of Septembe. for another term of six months, and to estimate the municipal elections, which woul in the ordinary course have taken place in Najember. The Prime Minister's apeach will be juged by the measure with which it meats the demand tabled by Sir Edward Carson, that the Parliamentary franchise should be conferred on ill sailors and soldiers who are serving, or haveserved, with the Forces during the present war

NORTH OF THE SOMME.

There has ten a considerable amount of heavy fighting says The Times, north of the forme. The French attacked on Saturday im-Bomme. The reach attacked on Saturday impediately north of the river, on a front of four miles, and acheved a brilliant success. They carried the Geman positions to a depth varying from 660 rards to 1,100 yards, and penetrated the subtern portion of the village of Maurepas, eas of the Hardecourt Hill. They took over 1,00 prisoners, they stopped a German counter-tack, and they are now in full possession of the conquered ground. Meanwhile the British forces have won a considerable extent of new yound north-west of Posières and Basentin le Ptit, and are thus continuing their encroachments in the direction of Martinpuich

BOATING ACCIDENT NEAR DUBLIN.

THREE LIVES LOST AT SUTTON. A very sad boating accident occurred at Sut-ton, near Dublin, yesterday afternoon, involving the less of three lives. It appears that at about 4.30 p.m., the tide being then about three-quarters ebb, Mr. Thomas Deyth, of Hill View, utton, went out in small sailing here. bytton, went out in a small sailing beat, accompanied by two ladies his wife, Mrs. Elisabeth Doyle, and Mrs. Penman, of Highfield road, Church road, Dublin, whose husband is an employe of the Dublin Dockyard Co. The boat headed through the Sutton channel, in the direction of Baldoyle. No person, so far as can be ascertained, appears to have witnessed the accident which overtook them, but the weather was somewhat soughly, and it is appropriate that was somewhat squally, and it is surmised that the sail was struck by a squall, and the boat capsised. Two girls were the first to notice the oversurned boat, which was drifting in the Sutton channel, not more than 150 yards from the shore. At first they mistook the boat for a raft, but on realising that an accident had occurred they raised an alarm.

Mr. Deyle had grasped both of the ladies, and pluckily started asymming for the shore with pluckily started swimming for the shore with them, but he became exhausted by his efforts, and all three sank before assistance could reach them. A crowd gathered on the shore, and numerous would-be rescuers swam out to aid the drowning people. They aucceded in recovering the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle, which were brought to the shore within fifteen minutes of the alarm being raised. They were both unconscious, but at first slight hopes were entertained that animation might be restored. Dr. Tweedy and another medical gentleman were in attendance, but the exercise of their skill was unavailing, and after some time they were only able to pronounce life extinct in both cases. Despite the plucky efforts of local swimmers and boatmen, Mrs. Penman's body had not been recovered up em. A crowd gathered on the shore, and

Mrs. Penman's body had not been recovered up to a late hour last night. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle were conveyed to their late idence, where an inquest will be held this ernoon. Mr. and Mrs. Doyle leave two sons and a daughter, and the deepest sympathy is felt for them in their affliction. The funeral will take place to-morrow to St. Fintan's burial ground, on Howth Hill. Much sympathy is also felt for the bereaved husband and young son of Mrs. Penman.

Urgent "whips," says The Times, have been sent out by the Government and the Unionist War Committee if to-day's sitting of the House of Common The Prime Minister has promised to outline he proposals of the Government for bringing up to date the now stale register of Parliamentary electors. Mr. Asquith will make his stement in introducing the Parliament and Leal Elections Bill. The objects of the bill se to extend the life of the present Parliamen, which would expire at the end of Septembe, for another term of six months, and to ostpone the municipal elections, which woul in the ordinary course have taken place in Neember. The Prime Minister's speech will be jurged by the measure with which it meets the demand tabled by Sir Edward Carson, that the arliamentary franchise should be conferred on all sailors and soldiers who are serving, or haveserved, with the Forces during the present war.

There has ben a considerable amount of heavy fighting, says The Times, north of the Somme. The Fench attacked on Saturday immediately north of the river, on a front of four miles, and acheved a brilliant success. They carried the Geman positions to a depth varying from 660 'ards to 1,100 yards, and penetrated the southern portion of the village of Maurepas, eas of the Hardecourt Hill. They took over 1,00 prisoners, they stopped a German counter-attack, and they are now in full possession of the conquered ground. Meanwhile the British forces have won a considerable extent of new ground north-west of Posières and Basentin le Pstit, and are thus continuing their encroachments in the direction of Martinpuich and the Thierval plateau.

BOATING ACCIDENT NEAR DUBLIN.

THREE LIVES LOST AT SUTTON.

A very sad boating accident occurred at Sutton, near Dublin, yesterday afternoon, involving the loss of three lives. It appears that at about 4.50 pm, the tide being then about three quarters ebb, Mr. Thomas Doyle, of Hill View, Sutton, went out in a small sailing boat, accompanied by two ladies—his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle, and Mrs. Penman, of Highfield road, Church road, Dublin, whose husband is an employe of the Dublin Dockyard Co. The boat headed through the Sutton channel, in the direction of Baldoyle. No person, so far as can be ascertained, appears to have witnessed the accident which overtook them, but the weather was somewhat squally, and it is surmised that the sail was struck by a squall, and the boat capsized. (PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

PARIS, SUNDAY.

The correspondent of Liberte in Northern France gives interesting details regarding the brilliant French feat of arms at Maurepas. The positions which we had to carry, he says, were formidable. On the whole front of attack the enemy's defensive system included in some places two, in others three, and in others again even four lines of trenches. These, together with a number of works, small forts, and fortified redoubts, completed the strength of the organisation. Our infantry were not checked anywhere. Their magnificent dash broke all the enemy resistance. Our losses were far below the most optimistic forecast. The regiment which is the attack nouth of Maurepas had less than ree hundred men put out of action, although it was at this point on the summit of the various, the southern spur of which had been occupied the day before, that fighting was shottest. The Germans clong on defending their positions fout by foot, trying to at and up—against our attack, and rushing up reinforcements with all haste. Their resistance was in vain. After desperate hand-to-hand fighting, our troops overthrew the enemy and penetraled the village, which had been completely sneashed up by our shells. According to the latest reports, fighting was still in progress in the heart of the village, the whole of the southern part of which is already in our hands. We seen pushed on a little beyond the village, and set foot in organisations situated east of a cluster of houses on the Maurepas Forest road. The whole village is bound to fall into our hands before long. Further south, our infantry made a fresh advance, reaching, and even passing beyond, the road from Maurepas to Clery. They carried Hill 109, which was powerfully entrenched. Furious fighting took place here, ending everywhere in our favour, in spite of the desperate resistance put up by a lire of the desperate resistance put up by a grant our favour, in spite of the desperate resistance put up by a grant our favour, in failers and the first hand the first had been completely small and the first hand the enemy's line.
